PAPER FOLDING III A VARIETY OF BOXES with Rick Garlington

"We Ink 'em Up!"

President's Letter

Dear Overtly Obsessed Oblique Cohorts -

October is upon us and the count down has begun to All Hallows' Eve. As haunted houses come alive again with ghosts, goblins, and ghouls, there is sure to be many little munchkins parading through your neighborhood bellowing the infamous words "TRICK OR TREAT!" As years past, their little pumpkins and sacks will be over following with sugary treats sure to spike their blood sugar and have them bouncing off their parents' walls. Good luck to all of you that try to hide and limit their sugar intake. My plans remain the same; to be holed up in a windowless room, and have a movie marathon with the house looking completely lifeless to those looking in...

The Dallas Pen Show in my humble opinion was a HUGE success! I want to have a special shout out to Eric for spearheading this and getting us into the vendor room, also, working the details with show organizer, heading up the impromptu rag tag group that supported the show and for being there both days to get us going. A huge shout out to Rick for setup on both days, tear down on the final day and being there all day both days so we could accept debit/credit transactions! And, to all those who volunteered to man our table and write names... Thank You!

There was much interest in Kaligrafos itself and one person signed up on the spot. I expect several others to attend upcoming meetings. Please welcome them. Our one hour presentation went over extremely well and was very interactive with numerous questions coming from the crowd. The demoing generated even more interaction, so much in fact, we had to stop as we ran over our allotted time! I know many of them came by our table afterwards. Now I can no longer say I've never used a fountain pen, in fact, I want one!

The reception of the "Inspiration" exhibit also took place in September and I want to thank all of those who attended. The Goodrich Gallery is very nice and our pieces were well received. Thank you, Margaret and Betty, for another wonderful exhibit! Keep your creative energy flowing and start working on a new piece as there is another exhibit coming up at the first of the year.

Our first workshop of the year is this month, October 24-25, and is a Round Robin with 4 instructors over two days whetting your palate on some new techniques and hands. There are few spots left. Don't let this two-day rush of creative yumminess slip by you.

This is your final reminder that the November Bazaar is next month! Hand crafted gifts and cards are simply the BEST! Why couldn't it be one of your works of art that gets a new home and inspires someone else?

Any and all creative suggestions are welcome and my page is always open so don't be bashful.

Ghostly yours -
Thomas

P.S. Take time to reflect and write each day as you never know what tomorrow has in store.

Book Reviews

If you are looking for an opportunity that will help others, fill a need and be more rewarding than you could imagine, then the Library Committee wants YOU!

We have an extensive library and it can be overwhelming (especially to those new to calligraphy) to decide what books to borrow, which is why the Library Committee is asking its members to write reviews of our books. The reviews will be published in both a future newsletter as well as posted on the Library Thing. For more information, please contact Brenda.

A Week at IAMPETH 2015

by Jeri Wright

As calligraphers, we are fortunate enough to have several national venues from which to choose each year for week long classes. One of these is the IAMPETH (International Association of Master Penman, Engrossers and Teachers of Handwriting) conference held each summer. The location of each conference varies and is chosen by the current association president.

Round Robin evening

This year the conference was held in Franklin, Tennessee, right outside of Nashville, July 13th through July 18th, 2015. The week begins on Monday with registration and an opening night reception and buffet. First time attendees are also welcomed to a one-on-one open forum that day where they can talk to the Master Penmen and receive help with their nibs, pen holders and any questions they might have about their writing tools.

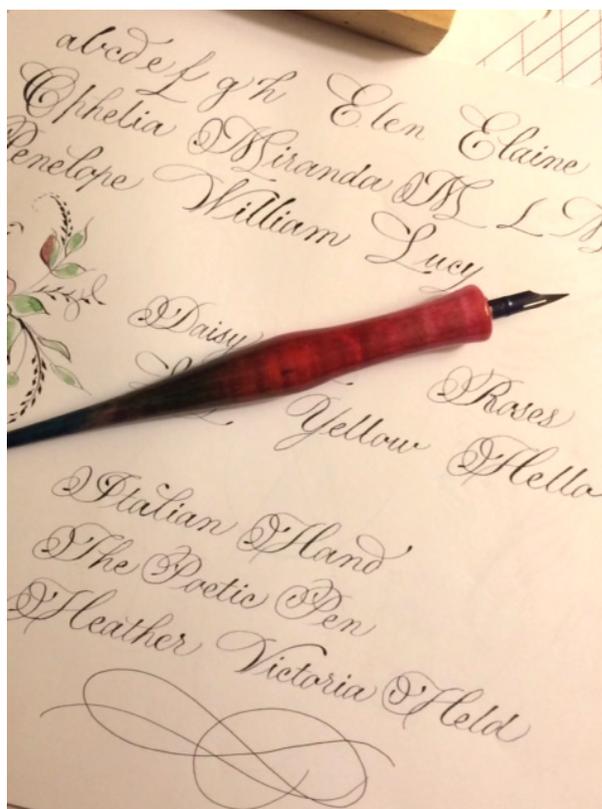

IAMPETH offers three classes daily for this annual conference. The conference is limited to around 265 participants. Unlike the annual international conference held in the U.S., the classes are only one day long and basically give you an in-depth introduction to each class subject and the opportunity to take home the tools in which to further study and practice what you have learned that day. The notebook you are given contains the class notes to all the classes, not just the ones you attend.

I took the following classes during the week:
Tuesday - Gothicized Italic with Marion Gault,

Jeri's practice sheet from Marian Gault's class

Wednesday - Flourishing Basics with Jake Weidman, Thursday - The Poetic Pen with Heather Held, Friday - The Acanthus Leaf within the Letterform, with Rosemary Buczek and Saturday - the Pen and Ink Illustrated Journal with Janet Takahashi.

The conference also offers several evening events. This year offered the annual Writing Night with the Penman, observation of several master penmen that will write your name out in their specialty style. There is a Round Robin one night, with probably 20 tables set up with different types of fun methods for everyone to experiment and enjoy. Sort of a 'make and take' type evening. Friday evening is always reserved for the Silent Auction. Many of the Master Penmen donate original calligraphic artwork for auction. This is open to any member that would like to donate items, anything calligraphic....books, pens, inkwells, artwork, etc. And, Saturday evening is reserved for the Banquet. This year, Barbara Calzolari was inducted as a Master Penman.

Barbara Calzolari's certificate.

Here is a description of what is required to become a Master Penman in this organization:

The IAMPETH Master Penman Society was created in 2001 to recognize members who have achieved a distinguished level of excellence in penmanship and the calligraphic arts - including Business penmanship, Ornamental and Spencerian script, Engrosser's script, Engrossing and Illumination, Offhand Flourishing and Text lettering.

A high degree of proficiency in two of the disciplines is required for consideration. The first group of masters was identified by senior Master Penman and Zanerian Graduate Bill Lilly based on the level of their work. Inductees are chosen by the current Master Penmen. The responsibilities of the Master Penmen include teaching and disseminating information, identifying potential inductees and serving as mentors for those who desire to increase their own proficiency. In the tradition of the Zanerian College, Master Penman inductees are required to produce their own certificate as proof of their ability.

Each year, the organization transports many of the archives to the conference so that members can view and study the old masters and their incredible work. This is quite a sight to behold each year.

There were four members of Kaligrafos attending the IAMPETH conference this year. Along with me, Donna Sabolovic, Nicole Black and Eric Doerr attended.

Donna, Nicole & Jeri

If you are not familiar with this organization, please check out their website, IAMPETH.com. A lot of the information is available to non-members and you can find videos, guidelines, exemplars, etc. to assist you on your calligraphic journey.

A KALIGRAFOS OPPORTUNITY

The Dallas Pen Show

Thanks to Eric Doerr for arranging for Kaligrafos members to participate in The Dallas Pen Show in September. Some of our gracious members came to share their talents and expertise with other pen people from around the metroplex. Thank you, to all members who participated!

Harvey's Helpful Hints

by Harvey Anton

Looking for a zip code? Simply go to <http://www.usps.gov>, type in the city, and the zip code will come up.

Removing a Nib Tired of fighting, trying to take your nib out of a pen staff? Before inserting the nib, simply give the back end of the nib a quick shot of WD-40. No more nib sticking to the nib holder – works like a charm! Remove all excess oil.

No Fire Please It's not a good idea to use flame to remove factory oil from your nibs. If you must use a flame use a match not a butane lighter. The butane flame is much hotter than a match flame and can remove the temper of the nib in short order. The safest way to remove oil from a new nib is to put the new point in your mouth and let the saliva remove the oil. The taste is practically nil, or dip the point into gum arabic, or even boil the nib in water – matchless and flameless.

What is on a sign maker's sign when they go on strike? And what would chairs look like if our knees bent the other way? (Just funnin' to get your attention!)

Storing Nibs Have you ever tried using an old type ice cube tray to house your nibs? If you do, be sure to cover the tray tightly to prevent mixing or spilling your nibs.

Gouache or Ink Here are some of the advantages of using gouache over bottled ink:

- Gouache is more opaque
- Dries to a solid, full value color
- Easier to correct mistakes
- Not as apt to bleed on paper as some inks will do
- Has a tendency to have a raised effect on paper

And remember there is no right or wrong way: it's all in context. Your best teacher is your own heart.

Nib Spotlight This month's nib spotlight is on the Esterbrook #453 School, medium flexible nib, which is slightly larger than usual, but the tine snap is very good. You will enjoy using this nib without a lot of pressure which reduces hand fatigue. In conjunction to my handmade offset holders this will make your writing time more fun and more productive with less hand fatigue. You won't know what you are missing until you try a vintage nib. Visit my table and give them a try – you'll be glad you did.
